Digging Deeper

Who do you think might be in your life at the moment because God wants them to be able to seek God through you?

If God isn't at work, evangelism will always be hard work. If God is at work, then it's more like we're trying to open a door for people. When has evangelism felt like it's God's thing that you're joining in with and actually been a positive experience?

Of all the things that Life Church does that are accessible for someone who's not a Christian (eg: Sunday Meetings, Little Life, Alpha, Carol Service....) what do you find it easiest (and what do you find it hardest) to invite people to?

What opportunities could you make to introduce people in your life to things meet other people who are Christians?
